Message from the President...

Do Fence Me In

We have two problems with the grassy area between the school/CL hall driveway and the rink: illegal parking and parents using it as a child drop off area. This area is classified as parkland, and it is illegal to park there. Parking enforcement officers will occasionally write tickets but not on a regular basis.

During school hours, some parents will sneak in and park in the grassy area to drop off or pick up their children. This is a safety issue, as it often involves driving around other children and parents! We have posted signs, put warnings in the various parent newsletters and had volunteers patrol, and nothing seems to work: even a crazy old man yelling and carrying a snow shovel (who, me?) doesn't have a lasting effect.

We also have illegal parking by people heading to the university. In the winter, this means I need to call it in and be physically present when the enforcement officer arrives, to swear out a complaint. (Needless to say, this doesn't endear me to my longsuffering employer.)

I have spoken to staff at the school and the daycare, and all agree that a simple, low fence would solve the problem and allow staff, parent volunteers and me to use our time and energy for other matters. But, before proceeding further, we want you to have the opportunity to provide your input, as this also means the grassy area will not be available for (albeit illegal) parking during the spring soccer season. Please send your comments to the coordinates below.

Park Redevelopment Updates

It is all very exciting. The water feature is designed, priced and ready to go to construction. We are just waiting (still!) to hear the results of a pending grant application. Things are looking positive, but the tension is mounting. Here's hoping I will have good news for the next newsletter.

Meanwhile, somewhere under all the snow is a new loop trail around the north park. We are all anxious to see it, since – literally – the day it was completed last fall, the snow fell and has been with us ever since. Certainly good news for all the children who have been enjoying a wonderful winter on the new sledding hill, but it will be nice to see the new trail when spring weather allows.

My thanks, once again, for the simply sterling work done by our park redevelopment committee.

Triathlon

The 2014 ITU Triathlon World Cup is coming to Edmonton and Windsor Park. This is a much bigger event than the normal, annual race and has grown considerably since we last hosted the World Cup, as it now involves 5000 competitors and a week's worth of events. Not much news on this yet, other than that it is tentatively scheduled for the last week in August 2014.

The one bit of bad news on the triathlon front is that the premier men's and women's races will not run along Saskatchewan Drive, as they have in the past. In order to make the races more telegenic, the premier races are to be run over the High Level Bridge and through the Legislature grounds. Watch this space for further updates.

South Windsor Park, Brace Yourself

All the fun North Windsor Park had last year will be coming to South Windsor Park this year. Torn-up roads, sewers, driveways and sidewalks will make getting to your house more than a bit of a challenge at times. To make matters worse, illegal parking will be rampant, as the no-parking signs are removed for part of the construction process. The good news is that the new sidewalks and roadways will be enjoyed for many years to come. Please feel free to contact me with any concerns and questions.

Membership Drive

Thanks to the efforts of scores of volunteers, this year's annual membership drive has seen 246 households (so far) join or re-join the League. While the fees collected are important and will be put to good use on programs and activities, the comments gathered from and support shown by all who sign up help keep our neighbourhood connected and Community League strong. If your canvasser missed you, you may obtain your 2012-13 membership on-line, through www.efcl.org, or by contacting Janet Millar at 780-433-1270 or jlmillar@shaw.ca. And, many thanks to each of our block canvassers for their fine application of shoe leather and neighbourly spirit!

Unconfirmed Rumour

Through a “friend of a friend”, I have heard that the flurry of activity at the old Esso station site may be due to an offer to purchase that has been made conditional on the land being deemed free and clear of any contamination. This may mean the intended use could involve rezoning.

If you have any question or concerns on these, or any other, issues, please feel free to contact me at jbcollie@shaw.ca
780 433 1270.

Spring Smiles

Q. When do monkeys fall from the sky?
A. During Ape-ril showers!

Q: Why is everyone so tired on April 1?
A: Because they've just finished a long, 31 day March!

Q: Why is the letter A like a flower?
A: A bee comes after it!

Q: What does the Easter Rabbit get for making a basket?
A: Two points just like everybody!

Update on Bike Lane Plans

There has been much debate recently about the new bike lanes that the City has been retrofitting into our traffic system. The work is based on a large city wide plan that was developed after extensive consultation a number of years ago. Picking a route that works to create a good system is the easy part, figuring out how to retrofit it through existing roads and communities is more difficult. Just as it is with finding space to put the LRT through existing areas, adding proper bike infrastructure cannot be done without some tradeoffs.

The advantage is that we can make sure we can create a space where bikes clearly belong, that is out of the way of traffic and pedestrians, and allows for the smooth flowing and safety of all involved. Done well it should eradicate the kind of circumstances that lead to the death of Isaak Kornelson as he was biking on Whyte Ave last fall and got squeezed between a parked car and a cement truck. We have to find routes that allow bicyclists to travel as directly as possible from point to point, while at the same time avoiding the most congested automobile arterials. The bike master plan does just that. The tradeoff is that it often means that the new bike routes are going down roads that may not have the width to keep the drive lanes for cars, the sidewalks for pedestrians, space for bicycles and still keep all the street parking. It is over that lost parking that most of the concern has come from people living along those routes.

Every effort has been made in the design to maintain parking and to replace any lost spaces nearby. But if the bike lane gets compromised to the point that it has the bikes weaving in and out of traffic as the lane comes and goes, then we have not achieved anything. All we end up doing is creating inconvenience without improving safety. If we compromise it to the extent that no one uses the lane then we have achieved nothing.

We are focusing our efforts on providing high quality routes for bikes in the areas where there is already heavy demand. This may cost a bit more, and we may cover fewer kilometers, but I think this is a case where getting quality instead of quantity will be of benefit to all.

The good news is that, as a result of our efforts over the past few years, we have seen a marked improvement in the number of people biking. And for all of those people who can make that choice it creates more space on the roadway for those who have no choice but to use the automobile. If we can do this right it will benefit everyone.

Green & Gold Community Garden

A local garden with global impact

The Green & Gold Community garden, on the University of Alberta South Campus, is gearing up for its fifth gardening season. The garden is an initiative of the University's School of Public Health and Faculty of Agricultural, Life and Environmental Sciences. Volunteers manage the garden and all of their time, and most of the seeds, plants and equipment used are donated.

All are welcome to volunteer at the garden or to come to the garden markets.

The vegetables, herbs and flowers are all "spray-free" (no pesticides or artificial fertilizers are used). Anyone is welcome to 'purchase' their vegetables at the garden market. Every penny of donations goes to the Tubahumurize Association, a non-profit organization in Rwanda that provides socially and economically marginalized women with vocational training, counselling, life-skills coaching, health care education, and opportunities for sustainable income generating activities. Last year the garden raised over $17,000 for the Tubahumurize project, and over $8,000 more was raised from sales of Tubahumurize handicrafts.

We are always looking for new volunteers to help at the garden. Both novice and experienced gardeners are most welcome. If you don't like gardening, but would like to help in other ways (distributing produce, promoting the garden, donating seeds or garden tools) please contact us at:

E-mail: garden@ualberta.ca / Phone: (780) 492-9079 / Web site: http://bit.ly/greenandgold\_garden

If you would like to receive the garden e-mails this summer (these let you know what produce is available at the garden and the market hours that week) please sign up to our garden listserv at:

mailman.srv.ualberta.ca/mailman/listinfo/gggarden

Seed & Handicraft Sale & Volunteer orientation sessions: We are planning a seed and handicraft sale, and an information session for those interested in volunteering at the garden. (Flower, vegetable and herb seeds and Rwandan handicrafts made at Tubahumurize will be on sale at both events.)

The Seed & Handicraft Sale will be held on Saturday, March 23, from 10:30am to 1:30pm. The Volunteer Orientation Session will be held on Saturday, April 27, from 11:30am to 1:30pm. Both events will be held at the Strathcona branch of the Edmonton Public Library (8331-104 St).

Southwest Edmonton Farmers' Market

Your community market is entering its third season this year. Think of the market as more than simply the best place to find freshly prepared food and wonderfully ripe, fresh fruits and vegetables... think of it as a community gathering place: a place where the community spirit comes alive, where you can experience great beauty, where you can connect with friends, family and neighbours, where you can help to support the local economy and where you can nourish your family with the freshest produce and wonderfully scrumptious, nutrient-dense foods.

Mark your calendars for May 15th, the first market day of the season. There will be lots of fun things happening at your community market on that day. This year, the Southwest Edmonton Farmers' Market is moving slightly and will be held in the parking lot of the Terwillegar Recreation Centre, at the corner of 23rd Avenue and Leger Road, (the one near the big new animated sign) on Wednesdays from 4:30-7:30pm.

The Southwest Edmonton Farmers' Market is an outdoor, seasonal market, so while you may not find an abundance of fresh fruits and veggies on its first market day, you will find plenty of other things to amuse and entice you. Did you know that you can buy bedding plants and wonderful planters at your local market? Plan to come and check them out while grabbing a bite to eat at a food truck with your family.

Do you find yourself itching for market season to be part of your life? Do you find that you just can't wait for the outdoor market season to begin? Then

The Song of The Universe” Artist Nataliya Bukhanova

Jeff Allen Art Gallery(JAAG)
Strathcona Place Senior Centre
10831 University Avenue
March,29, 2013 to April 24, 2013
Reception April 10, 2013 6:30 – 8:30 PM

Nataliya Bukhanova in her art is aspiring to show “another side of the edges of reality which reflect one another endlessly creating our universe”. Her paintings in water colours and acrylics reflect world realities and this she shows through the use of teapots. A teapot from the time of the Russian revolution would have a very different story and spirit from a Japanese Royal Palace teapot or an English countryside teapot. Many questions can be asked about the nature of the people that use the teapots, the realities of their world and possibly their hopes and dreams for their future. Nataliya Bukhanova has previously exhibited in Russia and Canada. Do not miss this very unusual exhibit. Everybody is welcome.

Windsor Park: What's the Story?

(Part of this article was published in the April 2012 Newsletter)

On April 20, 1910, the Edmonton Bulletin breathlessly broke the news of “one of the best arranged sub-divisions yet added to the city’s surveyed sections. The two hundred or so acres of splendid land recently obtained by the English syndicate at a price in excess of $175,000 will be named Windsor Park . . . [T]he common style of ‘checker board’ surveying has not been followed in the sub-division. The contour of the river bank . . . necessitates many odd shaped sections but all the lots are nicely situated and of ample size. A circular portion is arranged for the centre of the grounds and practically all of the streets will connect with this park-like circle.”

For the next 40 years, the “park- like circle” lay dormant, a “bare, grassy area” according to one laconic eyewitness. Around 1953, however, Edmonton’s chief architect, Robert Falconer Duke, began to create a landscape design for Windsor Park. Duke enlisted his colleague, architect William Pasternak, to assist him.

Celebrated today as one of Edmonton’s premier heritage architects, Robert Falconer Duke was born in Birkenhead, England in 1904, and immigrated to Canada with his family as a child. The family settled in Saskatchewan, and Duke, who was a perfectionist with an artistic bent, completed his education and architectural training there. Duke worked for the Dominion Department of Public Works as a District Resident Architect from 1938 to 1946 before moving to Edmonton to join the city staff as Assistant City Architect. He became Chief City Architect in 1950 and held that position until his retirement in 1969.

A member both of the Royal Architecture Institute of Canada and of the Alberta Association of Architects, Duke was devoted to his profession. An article in the August 15, 1966 Edmonton Journal mentions him bemoaning “the short life of beautiful buildings.” Tall and slender, Duke wore bifocals and favoured crisply pressed striped shirts, cuff links and double-breasted suits. A photograph taken in 1961 shows him sporting a fedora.

Duke is credited with the design of many of Edmonton’s important Modernist structures including the Borden Park Swimming Pool and Band Shell (1954), the Glenora Substation (1956), the Edmonton Planetarium in Coronation Park (1959) and the Westwood Transit Garage (1960). The No. 4 Fire Station (1954), Rossdale Walter Filtration Plant (circa 1955) and the No. 1 Fire Station (1960) are other municipal architectural designs credited to Duke.

While Duke did most of his municipal designs in the Modernist style, he was a traditionalist at heart, “very British” according to his daughter Marina Newby. He selected a spectacular site on Mill Creek Ravine for the spacious half-timbered English Tudor Revival style home he designed and built for his family in 1950. His daughter remembers the beautiful cottage gardens her father and mother landscaped together, and waking to breathtaking views of the North Saskatchewan River Valley, the sun glinting gold off the windows of the Hotel MacDonald.

It was around the same time that Duke and Pasternak designed Windsor Park in a naturalistic, flowing style reminiscent of an English country garden. Preserved today in the City of Edmonton Archives, the original Parks Department blueprints show meandering pathways, hillocks, “future walks,” stairs, and a shelter. A spectacular water feature, “Windsor Park Fountain and Decorative Pool,” is shown to be nearly 200 feet long. The decorative pool was sited in (and perhaps once occupied) what is now the rectangular, sunken grassy area in the park’s north end. A 4” double pipe “for fountain recirculating” was to run north and south. “Catch basins” and “outlets” were located in the (existing) brick retaining wall. Throughout the 1950s, the City of Edmonton was remarkable for its commitment to excellent design, and the landscape designed for Windsor Park was no exception. The permit was issued on June 2, 1955 and work began.

Why did Windsor Park spring to life at this particular moment in time? Besting Old Glenora may have had something to do with it: in 1952 residents of Old Glenora had installed their (much more modest) Alexander Circle park and decorative fountain. Also in 1952, Mayor William Hawrelak, his wife Pearl and their three young daughters had moved into the Windsor Park neighborhood; Mayor Hawrelak’s popularity was at its zenith and he influenced municipal priorities.

The fact that Windsor Park was meticulously conceived and executed as a formally designed landscape was remarkable for the 1950s. According to Canadian landscape historian Edwinna von Baeyer, before 1880, municipal public green space was rare. Providing public green space was part of the City Beautiful movement that many Canadian cities embraced by the turn of the 20th century. But by the 1950s, "providing space for public recreation was winning out over providing 'landscaped' public green space – which differentiates your Windsor Park."

Robert Falconer Duke worked within the constraints of Edmonton's geographic locale and harsh environmental conditions to design a landscape for Windsor Park that has matured over the years into a bucolic escape in the British mold. With open lawns and wooded glens, Duke created echoes of home on the Alberta prairie. A Chinese proverb notes that the best time to plant a tree is 50 years ago, and today, roughly 50 years after the ground was first broken, Windsor Park boasts an extraordinary variety of magnificent old trees in its arboretum: mountain ash; Scots, Austrian, Ponderosa and Mugo pine; Douglas fir; Amur and Manitoba maple; mayday; crab apple; American elm; black, white and Colorado (blue) spruce; larch; weeping birch; Shubert chokecherry; green ash and Japanese tree lilac. A much greater variety of trees and shrubs are found in Windsor Park than in most Edmonton parks. As Edmonton's Tree Inventory Coordinator Sherry Boerefyn observed: "the trees in Windsor Park are definitely uncommon . . . Trees like Douglas fir and Austrian pine have been forgotten over time. I do love these trees."

We are very fortunate that this beautiful old park has been preserved at the heart of our city. And we owe a round of applause both to its creators and to everyone who contributed to its stewardship over the past 57 years. Windsor Park is a wonderful green space and historic designed landscape, as well as a valuable and unique heritage resource for the city of Edmonton. It deserves to be cared for with love and with respect.

Trail Closures - Queen Elizabeth, Rossdale and Kinsmen Parks

Over the next 3 years construction of the new Walterdale bridge will have an impact in and around the area of the current bridge structure. As a result, pedestrian and cyclist movement in the area will be affected. The park space and trails affected during the construction period are the lower portion of Queen Elizabeth Park, the lower gravel trail in Kinsmen Park and the parks area and trail around the EPCOR generating station. To ensure pedestrian and cyclist safety, the trails will be closed on January 7, 2013 and will remain closed until construction is completed in 2015. For your safety, please stay away from the closed areas during construction.
